fire

Fire is often used as a symbol of God, Deut 4:24; Ps 18:12, 13, 14; Ezek 1:4; Rev 1:14. And it is said that Jesus will appear in the midst of fire at his second coming, 2 Thes 1:8. The wrath of God is compared to fire, Ps 18:8.

Our Saviour is compared to fire, Mal 3:2. The Holy Ghost is likewise compared to fire, Mat 3:11. The angels themselves, as the ministers of God, are compared to a burning fire, speedy and irresistible in the execution of his commands, Ps. 104:4.

Fire from heaven fell frequently on the victims sacrificed to the Lord, as a mark of his presence and approbation. It is thought that God in this manner expressed his acceptance of Abel's sacrifices, Gen 4:4. When the Lord made a covenant with Abraham, a fire, like that of a furnace, passed through the divided pieces of the sacrifices, and consumed them, Gen 15:17. Fire fell upon the sacrifices which Moses offered at the dedication of the tabernacle, Lev 9:24; and upon those of Manoah, Samson's father, Judg 13:19, 20; upon Solomon's, at the dedication of the temple, 2 Chr 7:1; and upon Elijah's, at mount Carmel, 1 Ki 18:38.

The firstborn of both man and beast was considered as belonging to God. If of man, the child was redeemed, Ex 13:13, 15; 34:20. If of a clean beast it was sacrificed, and if unclean either had the neck broken or was replaced by a lamb, Ex 13:13, 15; 22:30; 34:20. Later the Levites were substituted for the Israelites' firstborn, Num 3:12, 41, 46; 8:13–19.

To the firstborn son belonged the birthright, which included the headship of the family or tribe, and a double portion of his father's property.

[1] The muscles and other soft parts of the animal body, whether of man, beast, bird, or fish, Ex 12:8; Mat 26:41. [2] All beings possessed of flesh, man and the inferior animals, especially man; often in contrast with God, who is spirit, Gen 6:13. [3] Human nature considered as unregenerate and unsanctified, Rom 7:5. [4] The word is also used for one of near kindred, Gen 37:27; 2 Sam 19:12, 13.

To be one flesh, denotes an intimate communion, as if the two were but one person or one body, Gen 2:24. This phrase is used by the Apostle to shew the union between Christ and believers, Eph 5:30, 31. Flesh also signifies the human nature of Christ, Heb 10:20.

Is properly the source or spring-head of waters. It is often used of a well. Metaphorically, God is called the fountain of living waters, Jer 2:13. Springs or fountains are called living, when they never cease, but are always sending forth their waters. All spiritual graces and refreshments communicated by the Spirit, are also compared to a fountain, Joel 3:18; Zech 13:1.

The friend of the king was a high court official, probably the king's confidential adviser, Gen 26:26; 1 Ki 4:5.

The friend of God is a title given to Abraham because of his close relations with God and his faithfulness, 2 Chr. 20:7; Jas 2:23.

The word friend was used as a general salutation, whether to friend or foe, Mat 22:12; 26:50.

The gates were the important part of an ancient city. They gave the only means of passing through the wall and were usually closed at night and were strengthened by bars of brass or iron. The gate was the place of public concourse, partly because it was an open space, not usually found elsewhere in a city. Much of the legal business of the city was done there, Ruth 4:11.

The word gate is sometimes used to mean power or dominion. God promises Abraham, that his posterity should possess the gates of their enemies, their towns, their fortresses, Gen 22:17. They should conquer them, they should have dominion over them.

The gates of death are the brink, or mouth of the grave, Ps 9:13.

Comes from the Greek word Genealogia, which signifies a history of the descent of an individual or family from an ancestor. The Jews were very exact in their genealogies, partly in order that family honours and family property should descend properly; partly to keep the line wherein the Messiah was to come.

Even the Babylonian Exile did not prevent the keeping of these, as a rule, for we find that some, who claimed Jewish descent but could not produce their genealogy, were not allowed part in the Return as were the others.

Gentile

The Hebrews call the Gentiles by the general name of Goiim, which signifies the nations that have not received the faith, or law of God. All who are not Jews and circumcised, are comprised under the word Goiim. Those who were converted, and embraced Judaism, they called Proselytes.

The apostle Paul generally includes all Gentiles under the name of Greeks, Rom 1:16.

The old prophets declared in a very particular manner the calling of the Gentiles. Jacob foretold, that when Shiloh, or the Messiah should come, to him should the gathering of the people be; that is, the Gentiles should yield obedience to Christ, and acknowledge him for their Lord and Saviour.

The Hebrew Nephel may signify a monster, or a terrible man, who beats and bears down other men. The Scripture speaks of Giants who lived before the flood; they are called Nephilim, mighty men which were of old, men of renown. Gen 6:4. The words Emim and Rephaim are also used to denote these unusual men.

The Anakims, or the sons of Anak, were the most famous giants of Palestine. They dwelt near Hebron. Their stature was so much above what was common, that the Israelites, who were sent to view the promised land, told the people at their return, that they had seen giants of the race of Anak in that country, who were of so monstrous a size, that the Israelites, in comparison, were but grasshoppers, Num 13:33.

With the long loose robes which were commonly worn in the East a girdle was very necessary when a man wished to do any active work. When men were at ease the robes fell loosely around them, but the first thing in preparing for walking or for work was to tighten the girdle and tuck up the long skirts of the robe, 1 Ki 18:46.

The girdle was sometimes of leather, but more usually a long piece of soft cloth, or silk that could be easily wrapped around the body and tied tightly.

God

The Creator and Father of all things, supreme Ruler of the world. The usual name given to God by the Hebrews was that which is rendered into English by the word Jehovah. Where the older version has the word GOD printed in capitals the American Revision has substituted the word Jehovah.

This word Jehovah was so reverenced by the ancient Hebrews that it was not generally pronounced, its place being taken, in speaking, by Adonai, Lord, Elohim, or El-Shaddai, all of which are really expressions for the attributes of God.

The English word gospel comes from the Anglo-Saxon gōdspel which meant good tidings, through gŏdspel, or god-story. The word in the original (Greek) in the New Testament is euaggelion, from which, through the Latin evangelium, comes our word evangel, with its derivatives. In the New Testament it is the Christ-message, not the books which were written to spread that message. Later it was applied to the four books which tell of the earthly life of Jesus—Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John.

There was an abundance of vineyards in Palestine from the earliest times. The vines were celebrated both for luxuriant growth and for the immense clusters of grapes which they produced which were sometimes carried on a staff between two men as in the case of the spies, Num 13:23, 24, and as has been done in some instances in modern times.

From the abundance and excellence of the vines, it may readily be understood how frequently this plant is the subject of metaphor in the Holy Scriptures.

The word hand is sometimes used for power, as in 1 Sam 5:6, 7. This is especially the case where the expression right hand is used.

To pour water on any one's hands, meant to serve him, 2 Ki 3:11.

To wash one's hands, denoted that the person was innocent of crime, Deut 21:6, 7; Mat 27:24.

To kiss one's hand, is an act of adoration, Job 31:27.

To lift up one's hand, is a way of taking an oath in use with all nations, Gen 14:22. It was likewise a posture used in praying for a blessing, Lev 9:22. To lift up the hand against one, is to rebel against him, 2 Sam 20:21.

To give one's hand, means to swear friendship, to promise security, to make alliance. 2 Ki 10:15.

The right hand denotes power, strength. The scripture generally imputes to God's right hand all the effects of his omnipotence, Ex 15:6; Ps 17:7; 20:6; 44:3.

Often, to be at one's right hand signifies to defend, to protect, to support, Ps 16:8; 109:31.

Laying on of hands is understood in different ways both in the Old and New Testaments. [1] It is often taken for ordination and consecration of priests and ministers, as well among the Jews as the Christians, Num 8:10; Acts 6:6; 13:3; 1 Tim 4:14. [2] It is sometimes also made use of to signify the establishment of judges and magistrates, Gen 48:14; Num 27:18.

This word is used of the abode of the redeemed after death and the second resurrection. It is also used for God, without whom there would be no heaven.

It is sometimes used of the air, as in the phrase birds or fowls of heaven. And for the sky, wherein the sun, moon, and stars are placed.

the beginning God created h. Gen 1:1
and God called the firmament h. 8 lights in the firmament of h. 14, 15

hell

This word is generally used in the Old Testament to translate the Hebrew word Sheol, which really means simply the place of the dead, without reference to happiness or the reverse, see Gen 37:35; 42:38; 1 Sam 2:6; Job 14:13.

In other passages there is an idea of punishment. The American Revision retains the Hebrew word in all places.

In the New Testament the word hell is used to translate two words, [1] Hades, generally meaning the same as Sheol, the place of the dead, Acts 2:21; 1 Cor 15:55; Rev 20:13. [2] Gehenna, the place of retribution for evil deeds.

Palestine is often referred to in the Bible as a land flowing with milk and honey, Ex 3:8. Bees are still abundant even in the remote parts of the wilderness, where they deposit their honey in the crevices of rocks or in hollow trees. In some places the word which is translated honey may mean a decoction of the juice of the grape, Gen 43:11; Ezek 27:17. Honey was not to be used in sacrifices, Lev 2:11; but the firstfruits of honey as of other things were to be presented to the Lord, for the use of his priests.

This word is often used metaphorically to signify strength and honour, because horns are the chief weapons and ornaments of the animals which possess them; hence they are also used as a type of victory. In the sense of honour, the word stands both for the abstract, Lam 2:3; and so for supreme authority, or for the concrete, Dan 7:8, whence it comes to mean king or kingdom.

The most striking feature of the notices of this animal in the Bible is that it invariably means a war-horse. The principal use of the horse in war was in the chariot, and because of the hilly nature of Palestine only certain localities allowed the use of chariots. The possession of a large number of horses, or their breeding, was forbidden in early times, Deut 17:16, and was held to apply to later periods as well. David first gathered a force of cavalry or chariots, 2 Sam 8:4, but Solomon was the first to have them in great numbers, 1 Ki 4:26. They were not shod, and those with naturally hard hoofs were greatly desired, Isa 5:28. Horses and chariots were used in idolatrous processions, 2 Ki 23:11.

This virtue has always been very much esteemed by civilized peoples. The Jewish laws with regard to strangers are framed in accordance with the spirit of hospitality, Lev 19:33, 34, etc.; and before the giving of the law there were many instances of the entertaining of strangers, Gen 18:2, 3; Heb 13:2. It was more necessary in those times of difficult travel and few inns, but the spirit of modern hospitality is the same.

In Apostolic times the virtue was strongly enjoined on the followers of Christ, although the higher civilization and larger population made it less of a necessity than in patriarchal times.

(The day was not divided into hours by the ancient Hebrews. Only the natural divisions of morning, noon, and evening were noted. After the Exile there was a somewhat clearer division which, it is supposed, was learned from the Babylonians. The length of the hour was dependent usually upon the season, as people commonly reckoned it as the twelfth part of the natural day, from sunrise to sunset, and this would differ according to season)

To lift up the eyes, frequently means to direct and make known our desires to God by prayer, Ps 121; 123:1. To lift up the head, is [1] To restore a person to his former dignity, Gen 40:13. [2] To recover former strength and courage, so as to oppress others, Judg 8:28. [3] To rejoice and be glad, Luke 21:28. [4] To be advanced above others, and obtain a complete victory over them, Ps 27:6. To lift up the hand, is [1] To swear, or by oath to confirm a thing, Gen 14:22. [2] To bless, Lev 9:22. [3] To pray, Ps 28:2. [4] To rise in rebellion, 2 Sam 18:28; 20:21. [5] To oppress, threaten, injure, or wrong in any way, Job 31:21.

Hath lift up his heel against me, Ps 41:9. Hath behaved himself insolently, contemptuously and injuriously towards me. It is a phrase taken from an unruly horse, who kicks at one who owns and feeds him.

Lift not up the horn, Ps 75:4. Carry not yourselves arrogantly, scornfully, or maliciously towards me or any of God's people.

Lift up thy feet, Ps 74:3. Come speedily to our help, and for our deliverance.

To lift up one's self in height, that is to grow proud, insolent, and oppressive, Ezek 31:10.

In a number of verses in the Authorized Version of the New Testament the word charity is used where the true meaning is love. In the 17th century when the Bible was translated the word charity had this meaning, which the French cher, chère, from the same root (Latin, carus, dear) still retains. As charity now often means something quite different, both the Revisions substitute for it the word which expresses the true idea—love. These references are : 1 Cor 8:1; 13:1, 2, 3, 4, 8, 13; 14:1; 16:14; Col. 3:14; 1 Thes 3:6; 2 Thes 1:3; 1 Tim 1:5; 2:15; 4:12; 2 Tim 2:22; 3:10; 1 Pet 4:8; 5:14; 2 Pet 1:7; 3 John 6; Jude 12; Rev 2:19. See also Rom 14:15.

Messiah
(Literally, the Anointed One. It means the expected king and deliverer of the Hebrews, who should free them from the yoke of aliens, and make them a great nation ruling over the whole world. Christ is the same word in the Greek. Jesus of Nazareth, believed by his followers to be this long-promised Messiah of the Jews, is for that reason called Christ. The first promise of the Messiah, although not using that name, is that to Eve in Gen 3:15. The same promise was, in varying phraseology, repeated to many individuals through the ages, notably to Abraham and David)
